Racism: Forging a New Way Together

During this conference, we are opening space to listen and learn, to generate momentum, and identify structural and educational strengths and barriers as they emerge from our dialogue, in order to create change. One of the themes we are exploring is racism.

Racism is built into our structures in Canada, including our health care system and mental health services. COVID-19 has exposed this in a new way. Join us as many presenters open up this space and these conversations, including the panel presentation on Friday, October 22. It's time to share and acknowledge experiences and forge a new way together.

Check out our racism sessions and speakers below:

October 20 - *Having Hard Conversations about Racism within Nursing Education*

October 21 – *Micro-aggressions are a macro-level issue: Addressing the call for anti-racism curricula in nursing and psychiatric nursing education*

October 21 – *Finding Balance and Belonging While Facing Racism, Sexism, and Criticism: The First Year of RPN and RN Transition into the Workforce*

October 21 – *Chinese Cultural Influences on Patient and Family Understanding of Psychosis: A Systematic Review*

October 22 – *Racism in Mental Health Panel*
