Dr. Shelley Evan, RN, PhD is a Sessional Instructor at the University of Windsor School of Nursing in Ontario, Canada. She has taught nursing students for 15 years. Shelley's research interests include the health of the transgender person and aims to improve healthcare delivery by understanding transgender and gender diverse peoples' experiences. Her goal is to build and reinforce registered nurses' and health professionals' capacity to counteract the discrimination and stigma in healthcare setting trans people face and promote equity-oriented approaches to care.

Shelley is President of the Rainbow Nursing Interest Group within the Registered Nurse Association of Ontario in Canada. This group aims to dismantle any forms of stereotypes, prejudices and discriminations and address health inequities in nursing and health systems in Canada.

Shelly also holds a Staff Nurse position in the Department of Emergency Medicine with the Health Ford Health System in Detroit, Michigan, USA and has experience with patients in critical care for over twenty years.
